Organic farming training :

In order to increase the crop production, farmers have started using more quantity of chemical substances and pesticides. Which is very harmful for our health and for soil fertility.

The methods of Crop production in which chemical pesticides and substances are not used are called organic. Using these methods results in increase fertility of land and crop production.

Free training camps to promote organic farming in rural and tribal areas (villages) are being organized by the volunteers of Sewa Bharti Malwa. With these camps, information about new techniques of farming.is also provided to farmers.
